ATTENTION: HARD HAT EXEMPTION

①

You may be exempt from the requirement to wear a hard hat. If your head meets the OSHA standards [1926.951(a)(2)] for head protection, you do not need a hard hat. However, you will be required to obtain a "Certificate of Exemption." Contact the Safety Coordinator to schedule a test.

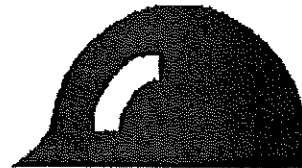

Upon successful completion of the five-part test, you will receive a wallet-sized certificate stating that your head conforms to ANSI Z89.2-1971. You must carry this card with you at all times.

The test procedure is as follows:

1. A 24-hour water immersion test. Maximum permitted absorption is 0.5 per cent by weight. Free air will be supplied by the company.
2. An impact test. While you are positioned horizontally, with your head resting on a 0.75 inch steel plate, an eight pound steel ball will be dropped several times from a height of 50 feet. You will pass if there is no damage to your head after this procedure.
3. Chemical exposure test. Your head will be subjected to a variety of acids, gases, solvents, oils, and industrial gases. In order to pass, you must sustain no deformities or obvious color changes.
4. Fire resistance test. Your head will be subjected to a propane torch for five minutes. If your head burns only slowly, you will achieve a Class A or Class B rating. If, upon completion of the test, there are holes in your head, you will receive only a Class B rating.
5. Conductivity test. Your head will be exposed to 2200 volts AC, 50 Hz, for three minutes. In order to pass, your head must sustain this exposure with current leakage not exceeding 9 milliamperes. (Breakdown threshold has been established at 300,000 volts.)

If you do not feel your head meets the above test requirements, do not despair – your hard hat DOES meet all the above requirements.

Unless your head has been certified, you must wear a hard hat at all times on the job site.
